All-Aluminum Alloy ATA Cases and Rack Mount Cases

- Traditional ATA cases use plywood bodies with riveted aluminum edging, which pollute the environment through high disposal costs of wood and glue.
- Plastic alternatives are too bulky, and also environmentally unfriendly to dispose.
- Aluminum alloy cases can be reused and recycled, and can be widely employed to reduce carbon emissions.

In order to reduce hazards to soil, rivers, lakes and oceans, ALEON has begun to use recycled aluminum alloy materials. This practice is in line with reduced carbon footprint policies advocated by every country. With our goal to promote environmental protection, a new series of all-aluminum alloy ATA cases and rack mount cases have been developed.

Compared to traditional ATA cases, ALEON ATA cases have these benefits:

- All-aluminum construction, lightweight and recyclable.
- Patented assembled structure design, aluminum alloy die-cast corner guards matched with aluminum alloy frame profiles and plug-in connection.
- Box body is made of 1.0-1.5 mm thick aluminum alloy plate, rolled and bent, designed to be comparable in strength with 9.0 mm plywood box material.
- Aluminum plate of the corner guard profile is fixed by welding after assembly, resulting in a firmer container with a stronger compressive impact force, and has no protruding rivets for a flat, beautiful surface.
- Cases can be sealed, with waterproof and dust proof grades of at least IP64.
- Light and strong, more than 25% lighter compared to traditional ATA boxes.
- Good weather resistance, able to withstand high temperatures and high humidity, no deformation or bursting.
